Art Unit: 2877

1. The terminal disclaimer filed on 07/24/2006 disclaiming the terminal portion of any patent granted on this application which would extend beyond the expiration date of U.S. Patent No. 6,501,260 (application number 09/738,108) has been reviewed and is accepted. The terminal disclaimer has been recorded.

The acceptance of the terminal disclaimer has overcome the obviousness-type double patenting rejection of the previous office action.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hu et al (US 6,501,260) in view of Guttman et al (US 5,949,534).

The Hu et al patent has a named inventorship different than this application, and is thus to another. The Hu et al patent was published prior to, although less than one year prior to, the filing date of this application. Thus the Hu et al patent is available under 35 USC 102(e).

The Hu et al reference shows a similar system for testing an array of semiconductor lasers in the far field; see claim 6 of the patent, including the claimed holder and fixed reference position; see claim 1 of the patent; using such a system to measure other similar devices would have been obvious because those in the art would have recognized that such similar devices could be usefully measured by a device such as shown by Hu et al. The Hu et al patent does not teach the claimed “polarization-resolving”. Guttman et al, in a far-field measurement, notes that “polarizing elements may be inserted ... to measure specific polarizations directly” (column 6, lines 55-58). It would have been obvious, when measuring semiconductor devices with a system such as shown by Hu et al, to include such polarization measuring devices because the polarization effects are known to be of interest, as is well known in the art and as evidenced by the teaching in Guttman et al that they can be measured. Those in the art could choose suitable light sources, filters, etc. appropriate for the particular devices being tested.

4. As noted in the previous office action, it appears that the Hu et al reference may be able to be disqualified for use under 35 USC 103(e) if a statement of common ownership at the time this invention was made can be submitted; it is noted the two appear to be currently commonly assigned.

35 USC 103 (c)(1) provides that

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under one or more of subsections (e), (f), and (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the claimed invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person [emphasis added].

The communication filed 24 July 2006 states that this Corning Incorporated “is the only assignee of the entire right, title and interest in and to” [emphasis added] this application, and that Corning also “is and at all times was the only assignee of” the Hu et al reference. While this statement establishes that the two are currently commonly assigned, it is silent as to whether they were commonly assigned, or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person, at the time the claimed invention was made, which is what the statute requires. Thus the statement filed 24 July 2006 is not sufficient to disqualify the Hu et al reference.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
